喂饭 (English Edition)

nt. His throat moved, the swallow drowned by the ventilator’ s rhythm; each piston stroke s nal buzzed once per minute — deduction, rating, billing, countdown — all numbers flowing ng of stale nutrient paste, drilling into Zhou Gui’ s nostrils. Her fingertip still hovered over

Gui’ s fingertip did not descend, frozen above the call key like an untuned string stretched t

“Zhou Gui, retrieval truck at three, don’t forget the charger.” Lu Lao’s voice came f

She held the phone to her ear, the other hand in her pocket, fingertip pressing the rim of